1. These numbers do not include fatal accidents.
2. These numbers include all vehicle occupants, pedestrians, bicyclists and all other persons.
3. The data was collected only from Police Accident Reports (MV-104).
4. In April 1997, a change in the Vehicle and Traffic Law authorized police officers to report any accidents that cause damage of more than $1,000 to the property of one person. The police officer estimates the property damage and reports the accident on a Police Accident Report (MV-104). The amendment to the law has caused the number of reported property damage accidents to increase in 1997 and later years.

Note: Different accident conditions and the positions of vehicle occupants reported incorrectly can cause errors in the totals of each category.
